SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1883.

JAMES B. BLAKEMAN, Superintendent of Foreign Mails, died at Washington yesterday afternoon.

GEN. SHERMAN was last evening banqueted by the members of the Commercial Club of Chicago.

JAMES S. CO., merchants of Manchester, England, failed yesterday with liabilities of $150,000. The assets are believed to be light.

MR. EDGAR A. BROWNE lectured in Central Music Hall last evening for the benefit of the Women's Hospital, taking as his subject "Cradle to Pulpit."

THE LONDON has declared in a formal address at London that to-day more good for the future in the Panama Canal than has yet been accomplished at Paris.

THERE was a marked decline last week in the demand for dividends as compared with the corresponding number of days making returns from sentimental outbursts but a fortnight ago.

THOSE of men of the railroads running into Chicago, with the single exception of the Michigan Central, will vote their votes on the standard time—that of the standards meridian.

A VERDICT went against suicide. Synopsis said he was well this (yesterday), and unless the Reverse Surgeon again avails the grizzly old man he will be put out of his [illegible].

PATRICK CROWE was married by two archbishops of similarly hostile character. At Philadelphia a carriage was demolished at a railway crossing, killing a family of three, while at Lewisville, Va., four people had their lives in the same manner.

Inquiring customers to be left until such time as the family is near the elevator have their rights. In Newport County, Kentucky, a girl who died of "[illegible]" was buried in a [illegible] coffin. A white man [illegible] was found in the sun. The making of [illegible] state is not given, or at present obtainable, but the usual ratio of trades to whites in farming operations resulting from "riots" in the South is ten blacks to one white. As a result of the riot, three colored men have been executed to death by hanging and twenty-nine to terms of imprisonment ranging from five to eighteen years.

INVESTIGATIONS show that the alleged dynamiter, Wolf, arrested by the London police, was a professional informer, who had made arrangements with the police themselves to expose a political plot against the world's representative at the Court of St. James.

EASTERN freights have recently been extraordinarily large. The rates go up to sustain, and shippers, in anticipation of the higher schedule, have for a while back taxed almost the full capacity of the track lines. No doubt there will be a marked decrease during the week now entered upon.

A MURDER mile in Lawndale, Sunday last, Friday night, not his sweetheart by appointment. A mere trifle, to which the young man, becoming infuriated, attempted to murder the young woman. A fatal result to the rescue, whereupon the young man shot both the women and then set his own dead.

THERE artists was reported during the last week in shipments to the East by rail, the bulk of grain, flour, and provisions aggregating 15,000 less more than in the corresponding week of 1882. The loss in the short is the shows of shippers to get forward as much of their goods as possible before the advance in rates, which goes into effect last Saturday.

For the purpose of applying the consolidated agency system to the railroads an organization has been incorporated at Albany, N. Y., which is to be known as the "Railway Distributers' Association." It proposes to collect and disseminate to its subscribers all facts affecting the stability of railroad securities mostly as it now does to newspaper buyers.

THE great successes of the so-Falls Prophet have even not confined of to Secretary Schurz-shoe to the Upper Sioux. They are believe there must be something in the Medi's declaration that he is a gen descendant of Mahomet, and that the Sultan at Constantinople, fearing of a bad omen, is to invite worthy to lead the Arabia. He dreams now of a throne at Constantinople, as Mahomet did what's once before him, and has already sent an Ambassador to the Court of St. James. The British have elongated the order to evacuate Cairo. The modern Saracens are by reps to the Egyptian Nile even, and civilization should meet him well to the southward.

SAMUEL KIMBEL, who tried to kill the several Guiteau, and who has been confined as a lunatic in the Albany Penitentiary since his sentence, notwithstanding the most unanimous popular protest to numerous issues, was pardoned by President Arthur yesterday. We imagine that neither the President nor the Secretary of War would care to go before the country in a Presidential year with Judge Kimbel experiment, and we fail to see what useful principle has been established, or what good has been done by delaying the pardon. The act of clemency only comes with more grace than it would have done if it had been simultaneous with Guiteau's execution.

THE FLOWERY KINGDOM CURIOUS.

After many long months of tiresome diplomatic negotiation between China and France, the former Power has presented her ultimatum, and her representatives have proceeded to leave Paris. That ultimatum is to the effect that an attack upon Bacnin will be considered a declaration of war, and the Chinese Government accompanies to withdraw with a calm, manly, and dignified address from its country and to the European Powers, which will be sure to command itself to the sympathy of the world and secure its moral support. The address is very brief and goes straight to the point. It states that France has been a dependency of China for more than 200 years, and that during that time it has regularly paid tribute, to dynasty has been invested with power by her, and she has put down rebellions against the Government. In the face of this France has invaded Annam, has made a treaty with the successor to the late Annamese King, who had not yet been invested by China, and refused to recognize Annam as her vassal. In conclusion the address says:

> If the points upon including the northern part of Annam, where our troops are now, the interests that are a detriment to trade the friendly to, and our troops there would remain still longer, but must soon have to be left. We therefore point out the impossibility to all Foreign Powers showing that to the cause of the friendly to bring tranquility the cause of the regions does not exist from China.

There can be no doubt that as a matter of morality and equity China is in the right, and that the moral sense of the world will not justify the aggressive policy which Proprietor pursued. From a political point of view the invasion seems more of imperialism than of Republicanism, and is not in keeping with the much-vaulted policy of that Republic that its sole desire was for peace abroad and development at home, and that its people were sated with military glory. From the commercial point of view the conflict is not favorable, as France never has been a successful colonizer, and her efforts to gain a commercial supremacy on the Asiatic coast are likely to meet with the obstacle of foreign intervention before they are accomplished.

France cannot accept the Chinese ultimatum without having squarely out. That she will do this there is nothing to indicate. Indeed, the recent change in the War Ministry forbids any such hope. What the outcome may be it is impossible to foresee, as there are subtle issues involved, such as foreign intervention and Governmental changes in both countries which may yet play an important part in determining the contest. It is evident that China is prepared for war, or she would not dare to encounter so formidable a foe, and that she has many important advantages on her side. In the first place, she has a superabundance of men as compared with France—between three and four hundred millions to one compared with about forty millions, though how many of these are to reinforce, armed, officered, and disciplined as to fight the French as anything like equal terms is very uncertain. Second, she has the advantage of being on her own ground, while France is thousands of miles away. Hereafter, winter the French naval ship men not supplies, is 1,000 miles off, Canton but 400 miles off. Third, the climate is deadly to the French during a large part of the year. Fourth, the moral support of England, whose commercial interests would be favorably by a blockade of Chinese ports, United States, and China's shrewd [illegible] Japan is, for her at the relative military strength of the two nations is concerned, [illegible] the struggle, but the Chinese have made such progress of late years in the art of war that they are a formidable people. Their troops is organized when they are properly led, and there can be no question that, although they may be overcome in the end, provided always there is no foreign intervention, they are able to make a long, bloody, and expensive war for France. Such a war may involve France in subsequent political complications in the Republic. Should she escape these, even, she will have incurred the loss of government in the eyes of the world by an unwarranted and unjustifiable invasion of the rights of a weaker country, which can never be regarded as in consonance with republican ideas.

DWELLINGS FOR WORKINGMEN.

The New York Academy Engineer of Dec. 15 returns to the discussion of the question of providing better dwellings for the workingmen in large cities, and, commenting upon what has already appeared in the columns of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE upon the same subject, makes some practical suggestions, or at least some that are more practical than it has urged before. It accepts the facts of THE TRIBUNE'S exposition that there is not much hope of the dwelling the greatly thickly class of landlords who now profits, tenth-class endeavor to exploit them or to require tenants to keep them in order. It says: "Coincident with the richest and most commercial of these landowners, the city authorities should have power to condemn them, and exercise it, because the health of their tenants led to constitute a public danger," and it might have added, "a public nuisance." To all of this we say, Amen. It is glad so far as it goes, but, as we have before urged, when these tenements are pulled down or suppressed what shall be done with the tenants? They must be provided for in some way. We are not ready to believe, even if it would lead him to take to smoking. The dance thought out: the old gentleman tried a cigar, was fascinated with it, and exclaimed: "What a fool I have been to miss seventy years of this enjoyment!"

Mr. Bonner seems to be to reach the same state of mind over the theatre. That he ever is an heretic is "Othello," and does so as living in "The Bells," and he concluded that "if there was nothing worse in the theatres than to see in them experiences to the devil have what one theatre-goer once said, a vampire place." But Mr. Bonner has been one of those who, to prevent ignorance of the character and influence of the better class of theatrical entertainments, has ever opposed them all his life. Even now the privilege of a lifetime does not permit him to be fresh about the theatre. When questioned about it during the Friday evening meeting he claimed the personal right to be as he pleased in regard with his own conscience, but added: "As to my example to young men, I advise every man to follow in my footsteps, and when you are 70 years old go and see the best actor you can find."

Mr. Bonner's confidence in England. If good actors and good plays effect a lucrative amusement, there is certainly no reason why new and wages should not fill their orders 10 years old before they partake of it. If Spasmodic-going is injurious, on the other hand, Mr. Bonner may indulge himself with impunity of his cue, as the old gentleman of the question did in smoking, but his example will not personally young men and young women to deprive themselves of the amusement during so long a period as he abstained. They will argue that their individual chances of living to be 70 years old, on to no means assured, and that to waiting, as Mr. Bonner suggests, they may be deprived altogether of the enjoyment he is now exulting from the early performances. If they were to observe, also, that, even if the mode of life held out so long, they may not retain the physical and mental vigor of Mr. Bonner, and hence are to be prevented from taking the pleasure to their in the theatre at his advanced age. Still others may argue that this would not probably not intended to be a rule of ours, and that it is not wise to live in such-and-such fashion during the forty-seven years and are which make up the complete and regular middle period of long-lived people.

The fact seems to be that Mr. Bonner has not been entirely candid about his experience in theatre-going. When he saw the play of "Othello" he was a citizen to about a hundred a range of rice and pastry as it was included to see one play. Suggestions of Desdemona, Iago, Othello, Cassio, Emilia, Montano, Roderigo, Brabantio, all attempting to murder and suicide, failed to impress Mr. Bonner, with all his long-rooted prejudice against the theatre, as necessarily relating to the spectator. He realized for the first time that the charm of spectacle, the fascination of stage illusion, the spell of poetry to soften and even embellish the low passions to an intellectual enjoyment and the pleasurable play of the emotions. Growing years are not at all essential to the condition of things. The young man and young woman who laugh and cry with the actor are none the worse for giving free scope to their sympathy unless they indulge the practice to excess or visit improper places.

Mr. Bonner might do the clergy some service and increase their hearkened influence very solidly if he would advise them, as a result of his own experience, not to condemn theatrical performances or subjects, but to endeavor to direct the public taste into a proper channel. It is not by counseling people to stay away from theatres, after admitting that certain theatrical exhibitions are at one reputable and humorous, that Mr. Bonner and his colleagues can enlighten and influence society in the matter of amusements. It would be better if the younger men of the church would begin to investigate fairly before they arrive at Mr. Bonner's age and advise their people accordingly.

THE BATTLE DANCE.

Later advices from Egypt do not diminish the evils of the recent Conduct of El Obeid or lessen the danger which threatens that country at the hands of the Mahdiism, from Prophet, who is now believed to be advancing with his victorious rabble upon Khartoum and Senaheeya Cairo. El Obeid and its followers are flushed with victory, and victory is a way of inspiration has a very significant meaning. It will only the ignorant and superstitious Arabs by thousands around its standard. Every tribute that is to the East, especially each news on this, and unless Egypt and England are on the alert to put out the glowing flame of the East from Arabia in India will be in a blaze before long with the disastrous results that attend a general conflagration.

The impending danger growing out of the sudden and unlooked-for success is evident enough from the consideration it has given Great both in Egypt and England. The Egyptian Government in its panic purposes to abandon the Soudan and order its soldiers back of authority at Khartoum as a few remaining in Soudan on the Red Sea. The British Government has recommended an order for the evacuation of Darfur, which had been taken when combined with the Red brought it some men who would have died fight in any body of picked men. The whole company, the Red declares, was one with which it was a pleasure to deal, owing to the skill, intelligence, fidelity, and self-respect of its members. Prisons are the typical type of contingency, and those of the Red were among the very best representatives of their class. But these men, superior eminently to every quality of personal character and intelligence to the average of their fellow-citizens—most of them, too, active here Americans—descended at the back of a [illegible] trailer, himself not a voting man of all, but a dyspeptic lawyer, to vacuum, lying, breach of contract, violation of plighted faith, and dealing as cutter of cutting a better bargain!

Nobody cannot live in an atmosphere of such deadly pestilence. Society itself would be dissolved if such methods were to be allowed to succeed.

[illegible] is certainly right in saying it would be an everlasting disgrace to tear down the Exposition Building. To do so would be a serious blow to Chicago. The Exposition is one of the institutions of which the city has reason to be proud. It confers solid advantages on the business people and all classes in the city. The various shows, exhibitions, conventions, and entertainments held in the building bring hundreds of thousands of people who spend millions of money in the city each year. There is not a line of business that it does not beneficially affect. The building was the enterprise of public-spirited citizens immediately after the fire, who had no idea of personal gain apart from the general advantages to result to the city. It has more than justified the hopes of those who were originally concerned in it, and to the [illegible] of citizens at this time would be a piece of vandalism, and a blow at the interests of the city. There is no reason why the $250,000 contributed by private citizens for the building and the $100,000 spent in the erection and restoration of it should be destroyed upon the decision given of the Supreme Court and the action of the City Council of the Common Council and their duties to arrange themselves as a number of business citizens who refuse to "[illegible]." The building is not only a solid attraction to the city, but a decided ornament as well. The ground on which it stands is of use only to the city. If the building were not on it it would be used for a cockpit, a cricket-ground, or a [illegible]-place. The effect of the Council to [illegible] should receive no encouragement. They have well the duties of the case, and that those who risked their money in the building for the public good have never received any adequate financial return from it, nor did they expect it. Mayor Harrison is right in standing between the public treasurer and the public [illegible] with regard to this building, as was the Mayor under whose administration the enterprise was inaugurated and every Mayor since has done.

The ruling rule of New York has been finally overturned by counties and governments, and the [illegible] are as follows:

[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]

The last legislature attempted to provide for the preparation to secure counsel taken to the State prisons with the view of ascertaining public sentiment on the subject, in order to enlighten the next legislature how to act thereon. In the cities both parties printed the [illegible] counsel [illegible] to attend the [illegible] examinations. The Democratic [illegible], generally voted against the propositions, and the other classes who were opposed to it voted a full [illegible] and voted freely, so the proposition required a majority of the whole vote cast to carry it. The vote as recorded is as follows:

[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]

It has therefore been defeated by a majority of 16,000. Some of the rural counties voted in this way: [illegible] for, 1,000; against, 10,000; [illegible] for, 1,000; against, 1,000; [illegible] for, 1,000; against, 1,000; [illegible] for, 1,000; against, 1

Queen of Beauty.

In the fabled Happy Valley of Sweden she does not exist. But since the remotest ages, empery and sentient genius have been allied to a science. A few years ago it would not have been believed that a fashionable, scientific law, scientifical body could be represented, making the person youthful in asserting campaign. Of course the arrest of time is beyond human skill. Many people are born with imperfections, NOT existed by Nature, are remedy there. A wonderful lasting artist—the Queen of Beauty, of Life, and of Health—has arrived in the West, who can remove the defects of Time out of dimness. Mrs. McGlashan has treated 1,000 bald heads within a year, and has never failed to grow hair as even the thinnest head in from three months to a year. When the body is diseased the best tongues known, desired down on the scalp. Pimples grow under the coating. The pounds gets into the circulation of the skin, clogs the oil; the hair becomes dry, dies, and drops out—just as a plant withers when water (its natural food) is withheld. The follicle contracts, the germ of the scalp dies, and the skin grows over the head tight like a drumhead. By Mrs. McGlashan's treatment the scalp is loosened, the outer skin removed, the germ opened, and a healthful diet for follicles. The imbedded roots then appear (for the roots never die) are nourished, and gradually push their way out through the newly-formed follicles, and the once glossy hair has transformed into a beautiful, strong, healthful, and permanent head of hair. She has testimonials from many of the most prominent ladies and gentlemen throughout the United States and Europe, who will uniformly certify that she has made hair grow on glossy bald heads, cured the scalp of dyes and disease, which also restores lost beauty and restores impaired eyesight.

Restoring Lost Beauty.

Mrs. McGlashan has made a thorough study of growing hair on bald heads, permanently beautifying the complexion, removing freckles, changing gray hair to its natural color, and curing the system of all impurities and ailments. Nature is not very liberal in the distribution of her charms, and it becomes necessary to resort to the appliances of art, the discoveries of genius, and the assistance of the skilled to restore lost beauty. When the muscles are contracted wrinkles appear long before old age. By the application of MRS. McGLASHAN'S ANTI-CRINKLE WRINKLE PAD the blood circulates, the skin is made smooth, pure, and clear, the wrinkles vanish, and the wrinkles disappear. The application is painless, and at all hours, and is lasting. The Victoria Cream gives the face a clear, fresh appearance that is not to be told. By another process liver-marks, etc., are permanently removed.

A PRESCRIPTION for DYSPEPSIA.

Certain, harmless, natural, and most agreeable of all, no drugs necessary. By complying with the following suggestions all the symptoms of dyspepsia, such as distress of stomach, nervousness, nausea, languidness, sick headache, heartburn, etc., etc., will disappear, the sufferer will again be cheerful, able to fulfill his duties and to enjoy life. Thousands have been profited already, and many thousands more can be made happy also. Here is the prescription:

Breakfast—A slice or two of toast, cereal or cracked wheat, a cup of coffee or tea (if desired), and a glass of Arend's Kumyss.

Dinner—A moderate piece of lean beef or mutton, a mealy potato or two, a little bread, and a glass of Arend's Kumyss.

Supper—No solid food whatever, simply one or two glasses of Arend's Kumyss. A glass of Kumyss may also be taken on retiring. Most people sleep better on it.

Though this regime of diet may seem scant to such as are in the habit of satisfying their appetite (not distinguishing between appetite and hunger), yet scientific investigation and experience have proved that it is sufficient for all but hard laborers. With above diet the dyspeptic grows healthy, ruddy, hearty, where on a richer diet he stays poor, weak, and sickly. One week's trial will tell the story and prove the logic of above suggestions. If you do not know what Arend's Kumyss is you can have a treatise thereon mailed to you, gratis, by addressing

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

New York, Nov. 22.—[Special.]—It is stated positively that a subscription list is being privately circulated to build a theater for Irving, which he will manage in connection with the Lyceum in London, opening on Monday at Germany in each. Candidly, it is said, offered to build the theater himself, but he has not yet been allowed even to subscribe. Mr. Irving gave his last performance at the Star Theater last night. He will be absent from this city until spring, when he will begin a series of engagements. At the close of the New York engagement Irving's benefit will be made a very handsome speech, in which he said:

[Illegible] I have to accept it I have to allow that [illegible] I am the last remnant of the old school of actors. I am the last of the old actors who [illegible] I am the last of the old actors who [illegible] I am the last of the old actors who [illegible]

AT THE INEBRIATES' HOME

Another Installment of a Patient's Experience at the Washingtonian.

Bolters and Bogless Politicians, Prigs and Parasites, and "Old Roosters" on the Perch.

How Curious Inhabitants Superintended by the "Assignee"—The Professor and His Hydrion.

The first thing that strikes the visitor who has entered through the most legitimate way is that of his genteel and not the irregular manner. He does not skulk and scramble to the Refrigerator Room some accord, others get an invitation to remain seated. At first he finds an atmosphere of benevolence. If the impression may be used, are those who have been received with him to the street, because, and establishment generally. As he looks about curiously, half-waiting to be back to the "real" again, he has to quit the doors of what once seems to take a most admirable place. Soon, however, he appears himself. Perhaps the gentleman on entering the "Light" Corridor from the institution, or it may be an old hat, that has passed from hand to hand for months among the "Washingtonians," is presented to him with the complaint of the absent-minded entrusted to all guests, he obtain the cap and stamp. "I can never stand a month of this, I'll have him the next place." Then he passes at unbounded hand upon him.

He soon sees many: there's an eye to bodies gas, before he has been over an hour the most prominent is to not more of himself yet. Last night Robert "took his book," and of the last he has been heard of he was in chapel. Afterall, it is not all a bad place—he can smoke and read. Happy fancies! If to the smoking-room, a fancy-apparel glare enough with those gas lamp arrangements like, dotted and numbers, and a wide assembly all covers with current journals.

DRAM, BLUE, AND CONSEQUENCE.

Ah! what a disappointment awaits the guest after first look for the mind! The owners with important features a bit of Franklin, another of Emmett, some too highly round Spanish matrimonial papers, and a copy of a sensational number out of date. To avoid an be able to less than three months old, and the, notwithstanding the fact that the house is fully supplied with the most monthly periodicals that are taken by to the habitués, or are perhaps, to the hands of the officers of the institute. Certainly they are not there for the benefit of the poor patient.

Has one to more disheartening to the weary guest after his three days of seclusion, than to find that it is thrown back for support upon a barometer and Bible?

From the library, with its disappointing to, he to the reception-room to kill a day. Here go a few of the guardian and habitués, seemingly playing the flesh game of dominoes, or earnestly staring at their hands, or conversing upon what they have to do at the old time, or long ago. Often they have had to fast, but most of them have been fed and fed, all and to years, seeking to find the key to get down, up, and out again. "I'm the doctor," an elderly inmate will say to a friend. "I'm doing famous, all to drink to bring me down, so, didn't they? That great gun," his sought bounds and closed as a board with two degenerative tides.

STRANGE SCENES AND SCENES.

There are enough the house who have used it for years. What scenes to them! Oh, a habitué being dragged up to the hospital. He has the horrors; a bottle of whisky has been found in the room; so he was packed up and taken to the dispensary and is now for the sixth, seventh, or thereabouts time—always to have again to the same institution. Why is he not sent to the "cells" on the spot? Oh, he is the son of some prominent gentleman—he has a good lawyer, he is educated. He goes here and there to a private, but he is welcome, and he is kept to it.

Then we to rise to the owners, and who is the host, pass-board, quasi-apartment somewhere out of Clifton, an entertainer and an equal at least a respectable conversation, an owner accosts him long with no such attendant.

There are the old regulars—men who have been there, there, and slept over the eyes, who have broken every rule, one after, got right down, and passed "—and Never," at any time after, and who have been sent up from the most prominent business houses in the city as one of a family connection. Of one the following story is told:

THE CLERGYMAN OF CLIFTON.

A minister of the Gospel of some sect that denies, while smoking with the attendant, to had on his last visit to say a few words to encourage the inmates, and then to the gentleman's before, he broke out with a tirade against the attendant for the grounds of the attendant's dismissal and of his being too constant a visitor.

He was straight off now, not straight, but staggering—in a fashion and got committed, as had the many houses, to a bed, completed on the effects of the house. The get to go and of the back county have known it to have fully supplied with the most wonderful punishments for the attendant are of to drink, nothing under the use of a drink, whose and, ability, and public virtue have long ago cast to the great darkness of charity. As the month goes on the daily demand, received, and transferred with the usual amusements to good plain eating. Daily, good fish, well cooked, lavished, of fruits, some kind of pastry, vegetables in sufficient quantity for the majority with for those who prefer to eat. The dinner has evenings and dessert here not for the progress of the chronic cases who are the "cures" as a rule-book. Some of the best cases actually partake from regular dinner-hour and indeed no longer at their first or a succession of temptation have passed a day of wide trial.

THE WAR IN TONQUIN.

A BATTLE WITH THE BLACK FLAGS.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—[Special Cable Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.]—The following important news has been received from our special correspondent at Hong Kong: The French gunboat Lutin, manned by thirty-two men and commanded by Lieut. Savoie, was attacked Saturday last on the Red River while lying anchored near the landing. The attacking force comprised 1,200 Black Flags and Tonquinese, reinforced by bands of piratical-looking Chinese half-breed. The contest was most severe, and lasted for about two hours. The Black Flags and Tonquinese fought with great fury, and shelter of the Lutin's guns was sought, including M. Savoie, a French resident of Haiphong. The gunboat was completely riddled with bullets, but help was promptly sent for hanging two pieces on the ships, without which she would have suffered severely. There was no Chinese regular among the attacking force.

At the same time an attack was made on the citadel of Bac Daung, which was defended by only forty soldiers. The fortress was surrounded and attempted to be carried by assault. Everybody is waiting for the decision of the Government. Some Admirals are trying to double one of the Admiralty. They say that the Cabinet disapproval of the expedition and refusal to the officers of the Queen's service from taking a commission under him. Under the United States extended to aid in the matter of communication for the Black' disposition. The Egyptian Government acted on its own responsibility.

OTHER CHINESE.

The Times correspondent today: "In that dispatching the representatives of the British authorities and the wishes of the people, the Gladstone administration has shown the determination of keeping events, and has brought on the country the gravest complaints to which they are usually subjected." It is unlikely, however, that Mr. Gladstone will have the Egyptians to cope in their complaints. The story of the destruction of Bishop Taylor's cross will be eagerly read in Constantinople and Tennessee, in Hindoo and Bavaria. Together ing practices will carry the tale that an army of Saxons has annihilated an army commanded by English officers. The Rebel has become the rival and ally of the Khedive, but not the Sultan. He hosts the Mediterranean of Cadiz, and then to battle a force in Egypt or Tunis without a fighting chance. He has the art of the speculation. The tribes he commands are dangerously hostile. Five Christians and twelve Turks constituted Christians and attracted to the Red Sea, there the whole country of the Nile open and undisturbed, has taken the conquering Rebel."

The Spectator says today: "Unless we succeed the Cabin altogether, so as to avoid the French will be fighting for their lives from Saigon to Hanoi."

At last the party of peace at any price are silenced and immediate action is necessary. The Saturday Review, heading an article "The Egyptian Civil Cards," says: "The success of a Black Flag to the Government offices of civilization." The Spectator, the same-named Liberal organ, says: "We must defend Egypt to the last ounce; we must hold the valley to Dongola. At last the Mogs must retreat. If we are obliged to withdraw from Egypt we must be ready to go to the Nile mouths, and remain there as long as we please. If we cannot do this we must withdraw from the Soudan altogether." The Egyptian Government must be the sole responsibility.

THE DRAMA.

Review of the Week.

There is perhaps no more delightful actor in the English tongue today than Joseph Jefferson. Other actors there are of stronger fiber, of more brilliant genius, but for whom such is to be found who can so thoroughly charm us out of the impressions of this actor, of Rip Van Winkle, and of Caleb Plummer. It is not enough to call Mr. Jefferson a comedian, for that is a word which has lost point of signification. He is an actor whose genius embraces the pathetic, the humorous, and the beautiful, and handling with the touch of the greatest masters, turns out creations and mimics with facile, yet artistic ease which the theatre-goer will find the delight of his life. It is conceded that genius is the gift which the gods most like to bestow upon their favorites, and that it is the one gift which the greatest study and the hardest labor can not supply. It is of that the fortunate possessor is to be congratulated, and for the opportunity to do honor to genius, and to enjoy the privilege of entertaining it, the public is grateful. It is of that the fortunate possessor of genius

The following is an abstract of a lecture recently delivered at Centenary Hall, New York, by David Harvey, the English author on "Man: Is Reason of His Own Beings Guide Found Sufficient for the Deep Cravings, and How Is Proof Given?":

Among the feelings of wonder and mystery that are associated with the existence of man, and which prompt him to ask the question of his own origin and destiny, there is none more profound than that which has to do with the thought of death and the hereafter. Both are the subject of Scripture revelation, and of the deepest speculation and most thrilling interest. Both are the theme of poetry and eloquence. Both are the source of the most powerful emotions. Both are the occasion of the most solemn and impressive ceremonies. Both are the subject of the most elaborate preparations. Both are the source of the most painful anxieties. Both are the occasion of the most extravagant hopes. Both are the source of the most gloomy fears
